The Sky Tells a Story: TRIANGULUM, the Triangle. To find Triangulum this time of year you'll have to get up in the morning about 4-5 AM and look west to find Perseus and Cassiopeia. Triangulum, a very small constellation, will be just below the southern portion of Perseus and to the left of Andromeda. The Greeks called this constellation Deltotum, shaped like the Greek letter delta. Triangulum is an old constellation and is said to represent the island Sicily, having been honored by Zeus with an eternal position among the stars.
